New Offering Highlight's the Company's expertise in Hedging or Mitigating Currency Risk and Delivers Increased Insights for Clients

WASHINGTON, DC – June 29, 2023 – Monex USA, a trusted partner in foreign exchange and global payments services for businesses, has announced expanded offerings to include a wide range of foreign exchange (FX) Options to meet Clients' needs on reducing currency risk. Available in nearly all currency pairs, the offering includes a full suite of FX Options structures and flexible maturities models, designed to help qualified clients manage their foreign exchange exposure.

As foreign exchange rates and market sentiment continue to fluctuate, multinational companies are seeking out additional ways to reduce currency risk associated with the conduct and management of their business. Through an individualized approach, Monex Options specialists help clients make more informed risk decisions in line with risk tolerance and prevailing market conditions. The Monex USA Options team is led by Greg Lyumkis who has nearly 20 years of experience in FX Sales & Trading with a hedging emphasis.

"We're excited to offer Options as part of the Monex suite of foreign exchange hedging and mitigating solutions," said Juan Pablo Carriedo, CEO of Monex USA. "With this new addition, our clients can now benefit from a more diversified approach to managing their foreign exchange risk in an increasingly dynamic and evolving FX market."

"Options structures provide our clients with new advantages not available under traditional forward contracts," said Greg Lyumkis, Head of Options, North America, with Monex USA. "The ability to minimize mark-to-market impact means that clients can harness Monex's award-winning expertise and insights to make more informed trading decisions."
